NEWS RELEASE

Vandeventer Black Promotes a U.S. Marine Corps Veteran from Within

Norfolk, VA (August 7, 2018) – Vandeventer Black has promoted Dustin T. Narcisse, a former paralegal, to join their Workers' Compensation Defense practice as an attorney. Before joining Vandeventer Black, Narcisse served as a post-graduate fellow at Hampton's Commonwealth Attorney's Office, and a judicial extern in Ohio's Eighth District Court of Appeals, while still attending law school.

"Dustin brings a sense of responsibility, commitment and professionalism to our firm; characteristics shared by our entire team of attorneys," said Michael L. Sterling, Managing Partner.

Narcisse received his J.D. from Case Western Reserve University School of Law where he served as a senior editor on the Canada-U.S. Law Journal and a managing editor for the War Crimes Prosecution Watch. After law school, he represented the Commonwealth in Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court as a post-graduate fellow with Hampton's Commonwealth Attorney's Office.

Narcisse earned his B.S. (with honors) in Legal Studies from American Military University while serving as an active duty member of the U.S. Marine Corps. He is very active in the local community and is currently a co-chair for the VSB Young Lawyers Conference's Children and the Law program. For more information, visit VanBlackLaw.com.
